The history of the evolution debate in the United States

Land is by far the Chicago region's most valuable natural resource, demonstrated by the expansion of waterfront land into Lake Michigan. The main resistance came from the south, where white leaders were worried about the threat of black women voting.

American Imperialism

Most prominently, the United Fruit Company had significant financial stakes in the production of bananas, tobacco, sugar cane, and various other products throughout the Caribbean, Central America, and northern South America.

The Nature of Natural History

Concerns about how his ideas would be received by the public led British naturalist Charles Darwin, pictured here in 1878, to

Louisiana Purchase

Scholars should reference the text at any major library. Two hundred ships were waiting in New York harbor for cargo that was delayed by the mess.

The US States Most Prone To Natural Disasters

Over time, this beneficial variation spreads to the rest of the species, because those with the advantage are more likely than those without it to stay alive and reproduce. Most megacities are now in, and will continue to be in, nations that are relatively poor or desperately poor.
