Privatization in Developing Countries: What Are the Lessons of Recent Experience?

The global trend toward increased participation is one of the fundamental changes of our time: more open economies and trading systems; more open political systems and democratization; more highly educated people in the developing countries and increasing human-resource capacity; more rapid and widespread forms of communication and information flow. Although the Handbook draws substantially on World Bank and IMF experience with the Financial Sector Assessment Program FSAP and from the broader policy and operational work in both institutions, it is designed for generic use in financial sector assessments, whether conducted by country authorities themselves, or by World Bank and IMF teams.
