Rapid Response Process

Rapid Response Rapid Response is a pro-active, business-focused, and flexible strategy designed for two major purposes. However, as layoffs do occur, inviting Rapid Response teams to meet with affected workers prior to the layoff will allow your employees to access services and programs that will help them through this difficult time.

Rapid Response Process

For an alternative to a layoff and closure, you may be able eligible to provide your employees with Incumbent Worker Training. Additionally, Rapid Response on-site meetings will introduce your workers to representatives of many other programs that can help them through this transition.

Rapid Response Services

The American Job Center also has services tailored to meet the workforce needs of local employers, so contact your local American Job Center or state Dislocated Worker Unit to learn more. For more information on the Trade Act Program and its ,.

Rapid Response Services

The WARN Act requires employers to with at least 100 employees to provide written notice at least 60 days before ordering a plant closing or mass layoff to affected employees. Federal and state statutes require employers to provide advance written notice of a business closing or workforce reduction in certain situations.

Preventing & Managing Layoffs

Rapid Response Contact Information for additional information on the benefits of Rapid Response and other services for your company, or to provide notice of an impending layoff. Step 3: Developing a Transition Strategy The rapid response team will work with the employer and any union or other employee representatives to begin preparing a transition strategy.
