What a beautiful tableau tinted and towering, The arm of bronze outstretched against all evil! Magpies Shake themselves hopelessly, hop in the spatter.

Peter Levi : Collected Poems, 1955

The sunk scrubby wood Is a pulverised wreck, rain riddles its holes To the drowned roots. On the one hand, an overwhelming sense of things: on the other, the impossibility of things. He apprenticed himself early on to the craft of poetry, becoming at the same time an engineer by profession, and he has continued to explore the work of words systematically and with a rewarded persistence.
