Below the Breadline: The relentless rise of food poverty in Britain

Of course, Jack Monroe didn't invent any of this. To this day I am completely uncertain of the purpose or point of the installation which has more to do with foggy memory than the work itself, which has remained sufficiently rupturing for me to return to it here, and now and then in other contexts. I'm a pescetarian; I've given up eating meat but still eat fish.

Bread Machine Recipes

They're so easy to grow and it's incredibly cheap for a packet of seeds. I always look at the ingredients on the back of the packet and I was pleased to see that the fish is Pollock of which there's a relatively robust stock in nearby waters.

Cooking on the Breadline: Guardian Video

If I do have a starter it's normally fruit juice or maybe melon.

Meal Planning Monday: Live Below the Line ~ Live on £1 a Day for 5 Days to understand Food Poverty

They're happy spreading across relatively barren ground, hanging in pots or even growing up a trellis.

The Breadline Challenge

I wondered if your children might be eligible for free school meals, it may be worth a discussion with the school, even if it just means that they make sure your children are at the front for any class handouts. I used to do silver service waitressing.
