FEE

In fact, many became addicted to nicotine in their adolescence or youth by an industry that spends billions of dollars to promote a product that, if used as directed, kills up to 50% of its users. The concerns I raised in my letter are widely shared. Promoting dignity at work is likely to reduce stress-related health problems and absenteeism and also likely to attract staff from a wider pool of job applicants which can deliver a greater range of talent and experience Royal College of Nursing, 2015.
