Elizabeth of York's Ladies and Gentlewomen

She persuaded both King Philip II and the Pope to contribute to her cause, but her effort was in vain. Their function was instead to look decorative and to learn from the older women around them. She asked to be buried at Painswick, Gloucestershire with her second husband, but her memorial brass, dated 1557, is at Low Leyton, Essex, where she was apparently buried on September 4, 1548.

Lady of the Privy Chamber

Our articles all maintain a strong historical core and cover subjects from around the world. Also, as the new Queen is not yet here and has no Royal Household in London yet, Mrs S is maybe the last known holder of this title. Providing the monarch with aristocratic companionship was an arduous duty.
