Holy Trinity Church, York, North Yorkshire

It features a perpendicular tower. The mournful tune carried for miles to let people know when there was an execution.

GENUKI: Wales, Yorkshire (West Riding)

It was demolished in 1937, but some of the gravestones from its churchyard can be seen in near the top of the Shambles, and at the end of the Square is a large inscribed paving stone commemorating the church.

Helping Yorkshire's Historic Churches & Chapels

I'd have to say Pevsner got it just about right; St Michael's is a treat for the senses, boasting some of the finest Romanesque carvings I've ever seen in a Norman church, albeit with a huge helping hand from a sensitive Victorian restoration. Countless black lives been lost throughout the world. It is not an historical work, yet it paints a picture of a diverse county which inspires love, devotion and pride, and could act as a gateway to further exploration.

Nidd Church, North Yorkshire

Also available online at - £. The east window especially has marvellous stained glass that was donated in the early 1470s by the Reverend John Walker, rector of the church. There is also another car park by public toilets along this road.

The Medieval Parish Churches of York: the pictorial evidence.

Church of St Nicholas, Withernsea, Yorkshire

Well connected to all other parts of the country by an extensive railway network, Yorkshire is a prime region for outdoor activities, with stunning scenery that includes three national parks. Directions: From Pocklington via B1246. It is an Anglican diocese that is made up of a diverse community of mission-focused people who are seeking to transform their lives, and the lives of others, by sharing the Christian faith.
