Decolonising the Politics of Status: When the Border Crosses Us

Census metropolitan areas and census agglomeration. We've seen how sociopolitical and personal contexts informed the representations produced: the caution engendered by anticommunism and assimilationism, the storm-the-barricades bravado generated by a social movement, the outrage provoked by cruel government policies, the childhood experiences that shaped the worldview of future printmakers and poets, the demographic changes that widened the lens through which issues are viewed, the intimate presence of Indigenous elders in a community. Norte America: Construcción de Espacios Regionales.

"We Didn't Cross the Border, the Border Crossed Us"

One officer, a white man, noted that he applied to Evanston PD after being referred by a friend who already worked for the department. As we reflect on the challenges in our communities today, we know that you are asking the hard questions and refusing to settle for easy answers. The Justice Department has the authority to bring litigation against public employers that either come from EEOC charges or from its own independent authority to conduct investigations and pursue litigation.

Characteristics of High Quality Law Enforcement Personnel 1. Especially in communities that historically have had negative interactions with law enforcement, facilitating a culture that prioritizes community policing strategies - along with policies, programs, and practices that support diversity - can encourage individuals from these communities not only to consider, but also to apply for jobs as officers. Yet this challenge remains particularly urgent in the field of law enforcement.

This pattern is also seen among women officers: women made up 17 percent of full-time sworn officers in local police departments serving jurisdictions with 250,000 or more residents, whereas women were only 7 percent of full-time sworn officers in jurisdictions with fewer than 25,000 residents. Still today, the Act sets out the legal framework for Canada's multiculturalism policy. At present, six of the ten provinces — British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec, and Nova Scotia — have enacted multiculturalism legislation.
