Top 50 Best New Zealand Wines 2020

But there are a few things you should know before visiting to make the most of your stay. Ready to try some award-winning New Zealand wines? Youthful and understated with lovely acidity and balance. Classic floral notes with quince and pear, the palate has crisply balanced acid.

America's New Zealand Wine Specialist

Since then, consumers are choosing more with a noticeable jump in 2020 driven by Prosecco. Light and frivolous but very smart. New Zealand's first Māori wine company brings us a wine that can be enjoyed beautifully on its own, but it will rise to another level when partnered with food.

Central Otago

With the heady aromas of strawberries and just baked croissants, you could be in a Parisian café. A very rich, polished wine with great length of flavour.

About New Zealand Wine New Zealand winemaking dates back to colonial times, and is now largely produced in ten major wine growing regions across the country. The region has a total of 1932 hectares, and average yield is 10. A burst of ripe green rockmelon and a rich palate makes this a very attractive wine, balanced by lots of good fresh zingy acidity.

Central Otago

Lower alcohol wines growing in popularity Wines with lower alcohol levels less than 10% by volume continue to grow in popularity driven largely by the wellness movement.
