Maternal, Infant, and Child Health

Bryant AS, Worjloh A, Caughey AB, et al.

Women's Health, Maternal/Child (OB), & Neonatal

HHS blueprint for action on breastfeeding. The organizations jointly state that, in addition to the risks of contracting the disease, a potential danger involves the separation of mothers and newborns immediately after birth because the mother or a caregiver has tested positive. Child health status and well-being can also be influenced by access to high-quality health care, such as that received through a medical home and maternity care practices that promote breastfeeding and safe sleep environments.
