Genroku, Saikaku, Basho

Was it the outside factors, or herself? Scholars have described numerous extraordinary feats of solo haikai composition at one sitting: most famously, over the course of a single day and night in 1677, Saikaku is reported to have composed at least 16,000 haikai stanzas, with some rumors placing the number at over 23,500 stanzas.

The Sensual World of Ihara Saikaku

He quickly became well established in Japanese literary circles although, in his early years, he used the pen name Ihara Kakuei. In it he depicts male love as it existed around the samurai tradition, as well as in the other arena in which it was most predominant, the kabuki theater.

Ihara Saikaku Poems > My poetic side

He started his travels after the death of his blind daughter.

Saikaku Ihara (Author of Five Women Who Loved Love)

You may write at length, using phrase after polished phrase, but if your letter is filled with falsehoods, it will show and soon be forgotten.
