U.S. Relations With El Salvador

From the Industrial Revolution through the 1930s was a period in which children worked in a wide variety of occupations. Our alliances are what the military calls force multipliers. The mill might provide schooling for children from the ages of 5 to 12, but at the age of 12, the children were required to start their working life in the mill.

This practice also let children work under the watchful eye of a parent without the children having to venture outside the home. A global technology revolution is now underway.

A Foreign Policy for the American People

We also work closely with the Departments of Defense, Homeland Security, Justice, Treasury, and the Intelligence Community to lead an integrated whole-of-government approach to international counterterrorism. Home-based businesses provided children a chance to labor by assembling flowers or other items. Or the Midwest, where farmland keeps flooding.
