Instead, it's a ubiquitous response to social situations. The involuntary lung and vocalisation spasms confer no benefit in themselves.

What is the biological reason for humour?

That means we need the ideas described in Humor, Seriously even more than ever.

Over 100 FUNNY Jokes to Make You Laugh!

People to of the past, present and future. Tickling will, of course, induce laughter, but otherwise it approximates more to torture than pleasure. Just listening to someone else laugh can be enough to start a person laughing.

A laughing matter

People report a greater sense of well-being depending on the quality of the details of their past or present recollections. Gelbart's an out-and-out writer as opposed to writer-actors, writer-directors, writer-producers, etc.
