Town Trail

The Walks 'The Walks' were created in the early 18th century as an urban park in which folk could find fresh air, and is the only surviving Norfolk 18th-century town walk. Returning to the High Street, notice the house of Nicholas Ball, a prosperous merchant whose widow married Thomas Bodley in 1586, using her wealth to found his great library at Oxford.

Built in 1828, it replaced an earlier bridge, the foundations of which can be seen at low tide. After, you can explore the picturesque streets of Lavenham, lined with shops, galleries and more than 320 buildings of historic interest. In Birmingham, there is a distinction between the Council House and the , a concert and meeting venue which pre-dates it.
