Goodbye, White Bluffs by Mary Powell Harris

There was some timber being hauled in, however, for building homes. Soldiers and their families began arriving in 1922, adding to the population and the economy. Funeral Homes in Our Delivery Area: Name Address Phone Buckner Chapel Of White Bluff 317 Main St White Bluff, TN.

Some nicer homes in downtown White Bluffs and Hanford were immediately seized by the government to use as office buildings. In 1943, the Manhattan Project—the federal government's top-secret atomic bomb project—selected a 625 square-mile area of the Mid-Columbia Basin that included White Bluffs, Hanford, and Richland to site its Hanford Engineer Works.

The train followed an old Indian trail to Cold Creek just below Rattlesnake Springs. The Indians must have wondered what they had done to so displease the gods! One of many floods picked up a steamer, carried it down the river, and smashed it into the bridge at Pasco. The completion of the road between Richland and White Bluffs was another occasion for celebration.

Funeral Flowers from PETALS ON THE BLUFF

It really brought the war close to home when residents were warned that there could be blackouts in the Northwest—enemy bombers could identify dams at night by the patterns of lights. The government razed homesteads and orchards in the mid-1940s. Families did their part by conserving food that was needed overseas, such as pork, milk, vegetables, and flour.
