Creative Constraints: Translation and Authorship

Each essay discusses the relationship between the creative freedom of the literary translator and the many constraints to which translation is subject; and each, in its own way, shows that translation is a re-creation, an interpretation, or an actual creative writing based on an original in another language and thus a transmutation of the original.

CW909 Literary Translation and Creative (Re

Marilyn Gaddis Rose shows how these approaches can also make translation a critical tool for the analysis and teaching of literature. Leading translation scholars and professional translators discuss the theoretical implications and applicability of the author-translator paradigm. Part 3 contains the originals of three literary texts in Spanish, French, and German and their translations into English.
