There has been little recognition, description or analysis of brokerage which is essential to the rapid development and utilization of knowledge in a large, complex, diverse, multipurpose and autonomous HE system. With recommendations ranging from reform of the admissions process, to restructuring of federal financial aid and state support of public universities, to addressing the various precollege obstacles that disadvantaged students face at home and in school, the authors urge all selective colleges and universities to continue race-sensitive admissions policies, while urging the most selective and privileged institutions to enroll more well-qualified students from families with low socioeconomic status. It also provides an overview of the international scene to show that UK higher education is leading the world in this approach to the development of a higher education system.

The process is key to creating new innovative capacities involving partnerships that are now required of a socially attuned and continuously adaptive mass system. This volume, in 2 parts, brings together analyses which in the main are written by activist scholars with deep roots in the movements and organizations they are writing about.
