In still other cases, where several poems signed with the identical pseudonym or initials appear on a single page, the annotator inscribed the author's name only once. The first and by far the more valuable for most users consists of the aforementioned list of nearly 14,000 attributions of authorship of items printed in the Gentleman's Magazine, attributions transcribed by Kuist and his research associates directly from the marginal annotations in the Folger copy of the GM. In 1850 he became Master of the Stationer's Company.
