DYING FOR SEX: CULTURAL AND FORENSIC NARRATIVES OF AUTOEROTIC DEATH.

If in the course of their sexual investigation children feel that the grown up knows something wonderful in the mysterious and yet so important realm, what they are prohibited from knowing or doing, they are seized with a violent wish to know it, and dream of it in the form of flying, or prepare this disguise of the wish for their later flying dreams. The impression of this failure at the first attempt of intellectual independence seems to be of a persevering and profoundly depressing nature.
