Up to 1975, the African performance was not much worse than that of the world average and better than that of South Asia and even of the wealthiest among First World regions North America. The report recommends that this should be done through a framework of fiscal sustainability centred on revenue, and that tax collection must increase.

The COVID reset Latin America needs

Latin America's growth rate fell dramatically due to government austerity plans that restricted further spending. Countries are starting to take policy initiatives in this direction.

Two additional countries, with a mineral export base Chile and Peru , also ran surpluses up to 2007 but they turned into deficits in 2008. Unlike the NPE, we attributed a key role to world capitalism in constraining and shaping developmental efforts and outcomes at the national level.
