Lillian Roxon: The mother — and more — of rock

At a 1966 press conference, Danny Fields, a publicist and rock band manager, was impressed when Roxon asked Brian Epstein, manager of "The Beatles": 'are you a millionaire? She remained there for less than two years and having been blinded by the bright lights of New York City whilst on a brief vacation decided that was the place she wanted to be. She befriended Linda Eastman, who broke her heart by ignoring her after her marriage to Paul McCartney was brokeraged. She was the original rock music journalist, but did far more than trail blaze a new writing genre.
