Inspiring progress off the battlefield The contribution of nurses in Vietnam helped break norms in. I am very proud to have served. Thank you for your service! They instructed us to not purchase Cokes or beer from roadside stands because the VC would booby-trap cans with live grenades.

Vietnam Women's Memorial

The United States did not acknowledge the nurses that served in the War until 1993. If too fat, we put them on diets; if too skinny, they got milkshakes. Servicemen suffered massive battlefield injuries, were sick with malaria or other tropical diseases, and were dying all around her, she said.

Women also served as members of the U. And many nurses found themselves in unexpected roles. She was intensely proud of the women she worked with, who displayed such strength and endurance as members of the Army Nurse Corps, she said.

Nursing and Medicine in the Vietnam War

They served as nurses in Union and Confederate hospitals. I was privileged to meet Lou and listen to her awe-inspiring presentation during the July gathering of the Atlanta Vietnam Veterans Business Association. Treating and caring for wounded Soldiers, she said she again found purpose and fulfillment.

I'd have liked some more story, though—there are very few fleshed-out scenes here. The centerpiece of the memorial is a bronze statue by Glenna Goodacre, which depicts three female nurses assisting a wounded soldier.

Nursing and Medicine in the Vietnam War

Women who supervised the nurses and acted as go-betweens to the surgeons received four dollars. Looking back now, I had a classic case of post-traumatic stress disorder — or what has been called PTSD — I believe now that all of us that witnessed the atrocities of war experience PTSD — to one degree or another, at one time in our lives or another. Smith, do you know what happened to you? Finally, on September 6, 1968, Jim began his long journey home.
