102

The knower and the known: The nature of knowledge in research on teaching.

102

The content is the means to select the method of teaching and the level of the pupil understanding.

Curriculum: concepts and approaches

Teachers who understand learning theories can use different techniques in their classrooms to cater to different kinds of learning. There are signs, and not only in this issue of Impact, of new thinking that combines a pedagogy that engages students with a curriculum based on the disciplinary knowledge.

Concept

The cognitive theory understands that learners can be influenced by both internal and external elements. Advanced academic programmes like the IB Diploma are headed in this direction. Teachers need to understand learning theories to be prepared to utilize them in their classrooms.

Vallance, Elizabeth, Focus on Students in Curriculum Knowledge: A Critique of Curriculum Criticism, pp. 37

This is not to dismiss what knowledge-led curriculum schools are trying to do.

102

Revealed Faith Knowledge: Faith is in part the king of knowledge that God discloses to man. Craft knowledge and the education of teachers. Objectives and outcomes are clear statements which seek to define what students know or can do as a result of their education.

102

It is necessary to be clear on which model is being used to ensure coherence and conceptual clarity.

Concept

Just think of the costs of basing not only the curriculum model but also the resource model of state schools on the public schools.
