Sierra Club

I recall reading a magazine article listing the top 100 photographers once and I knew very few on that list. Modest expenses may be paid in some cases.

RICHARD WONG June 25, 2009 at 1:00 pm Thanks Gary. If you are using a macro lens, be careful about shooting with a very shallow depth of field.

Sierra Club

So if your subject is 20mm in size and it is captured as 20mm on the sensor, that means it has a 1 :1 ratio. Mileage on our hiking days ranges from 4.

Getting Started Guide to Close

Before we begin our hike, we will do a quick gear check to be sure you are properly prepared and not weighed down.

Landscape Stock Photos

The system works best with sheet film, which can be exposed and developed one piece at a time. Do you NEED to have a macro lens? Once you feel that you are limited by your lenses or that you think macro photography is a genre you want to expand on, only then consider buying a macro lens.

Getting Started Guide to Close

Back when Adams, the Westons, White, Porter and Hyde were first working, nature photography was not even a term. CARL JOHNSON August 22, 2012 at 6:25 pm Excellent broad representation of photographers, but I have to agree that this list is lacking without Art Wolfe and Jim Brandenburg, especially the involvement that both of them have with conservation issues — so many of the others on this list have broad diversity and are involved in conservation issues.

Top 10 Most Influential Nature Photographers of All

Though my list would differ some, I am glad you included my father, Philip Hyde, who has often been under appreciated for his contributions to photography.
