I believe we must integrate our art if we hope to integrate our imaginations and the societies our imaginations create.

Leapfrog Press :: Fiction Contest

These characters—children, men and women—hew out a personal code that sustains them, identifies them, and helps define the community into which they're born or the one they wish to join. It has been long-listed for the Fish Short Story Prize, the Eludia Award, the American Short Fiction Prize, the Hourglass Literary Magazine Writing Prize, and the William Faulkner-William Wisdom Creative Writing Competition. What if many of the stories in my collection were previously published in journals? It has to be done empirically.
