

Contributions to the study of the early development and imbedding of the human ovum

James Maclehole and Sons - A THEORY OF THE CAUSE OF ECTOPIC PREGNANCY

Description: -

- Geology, Stratigraphic -- Jurassic.
Ovary -- physiology.
Ovum -- growth & development.
Ovum -- embryology. Contributions to the study of the early development and imbedding of the human ovum
- Contributions to the study of the early development and imbedding of the human ovum

Notes: Literature: p. 91-93.
This edition was published in 1980

Filesize: 46.96 MB

Tags: #Book

Paper

See Historical Introduction to the Catalogue of Um Anatomical ami Pathological Preparations of William Hunter. Inside the trophoderm the blastocyst is lined with a layer of delicate mesoderm, varying in thickness.

Embryology History

To this second class there is reason to believe that man and the apes also belong.

Contribution to the Study of the Early Human Ovum based upon the investigation of I. A very early Ovum embedded in the Uterus and II. A very early Ovum embedded in the Infundibulum of the Tube., BJOG : An International Journal of Obstetrics & Gynaecology

Lastly we have no certain knowledge of what, in the case of man, brings the ovum to rest either in the tube or the uterus, or of the condition of the developing ovum prior to the blastocyst stage.

Paper

But as Herzog points out, the trophoderm is thousands of times greater in mass than the embryo, and this seems too extravagant a provision for nutrition alone.

Book

A very early Ovum ernbedded in the Uterus and IS. Professor Arthur Robinson has allowed me to draw freely on his experience and knowledge, and, as stated, personally gave much time to the reconstruction of the model. All that can be said is that those parts which can be well seen are normal.

Book

All authorities agree that they are phagocytic.

Related Books

- Recherche-Action - Ses Fonctions, Ses Fondements et Son Instrumentation.
- [Levels of clinical pastoral training - \[proceedings of the\] fall conference, chaplain supervisors.](#)
- Anastasius - or, Memoirs of a Greek : written at the close of the eighteenth century.
- Abū Hurayrah - ṣāḥib Rasūl Allāh wa-khādimuh : dirāsah ḥadīthīyah tārīkhīyah hādifah
- Porträts im Rheinischen Landesmuseum Bonn vom 15. bis zum 19. Jahrhundert