Consequently repairs of the aortic valve for aortic regurgitation AR is not as common compared with mitral valve repair for MR. Increasing the process temperature to 42 °C resulted in process instability, reduced methane yield, accumulation of volatile fatty acids and higher treatment costs of the reject water. However, it requires normal cusp morphology.

SCANDINAVIAN PRIZE FOR RESEARCH

Despite many investigations there is no ventilator mode that has decisively been found to be superior. To make this even more complicated, a fair evaluation should take cost for compensation settlement in case of awareness and cost for reduced working capacity among awareness victims into account. .
