A fourth perspective concerns the problems former prisoners encounter when they return home, to areas where they lived prior to prison.

Joint Publications Research Service JPRS was established in March 1957 as part of the United States Department of Commerce's Office of Technical Services, about six months before the Soviet Union launched Sputnik 1. That is where their families and the people they know are.

Media Effects

Independent Voices is a four-year project to digitize over 1 million pages from the magazines, journals and newspapers of the alternative press archives of participating libraries. Topics range from presidential speeches to statements by sports figures, such as Magic Johnson on his retirement from the NBA.

Mass Media

The collection illuminates the lives of lesbians, gays, transgender, and bisexual individuals and the community with content including selections from The National Archives in Kew, materials collected by activist and publisher Tracy Baim from the mid-1980s through the mid-2000s, the Magnus Hirschfeld and Harry Benjamin collections from the Kinsey Institute, periodicals such as En la Vida and BLACKlines, select rare works from notable LGBT publishers including Alyson Books and Cleis Press, as well as mainstream trade and university publishers. More robust enforcement of federal and state fair housing laws will reduce the disparity between minority and majority crime rates. Some additional research has also provided support.

Incarceration, Prisoner Reentry, and Communities

Each author collection is included in its entirety, allowing users to browse and search the manuscripts as they would in the Berg Reading Room
