Arnold Schoenberg 'Notturno for Strings and Harp': Shimmering Strings

Work Title Notturno Alternative.

Nocturne for string orchestra...

Example 3 The tetrachord is a motivic tool used in the first Allegro. The lower strings start the pulse again in measure 267 with the motif from the beginning of the Allegro See Example 5, page 19.

Mátyás Gyorgy Seiber: Notturno for Horn and String Orchestra

This allows the gradual filling of voices to make the crescendo. It begins with the first motif from the Allegro, played a minor third lower. The strings, however, have some very distinct dynamic differences that need to be observed.

List of compositions for horn

Example 11 All of these ascending scale patterns are an attempt to counteract the increasing strength of the horn.

Notturno

The horn enters on the fourth beat of the measure, taking over as the strings fade away. This is relevant to the dominant to tonic perception being set up Example 15.

Concerto for Horn and String Orchestra

Over the next four measures a descending bass line, by half-steps, occurs to shift to a new tonal area. He served as Music Director and Conductor of the Chipola Regional Symphony Orchestra, Marianna, Florida, from 1996-1998. This is like the beginning of the first Allegro, signifying the struggle to overcome the darkness.
