He became Deputy Parliamentary Clerk in 1995 before moving to the position of Lords Researcher to Baroness Ashton working direct to the Minister on all aspects of Lords Business from PQs to Legislation. Though the form of the new federal legislature was again nearly identical to the Parliament of the United Kingdom, the decision to retain this model was made with heavy influence from the just-concluded , which indicated to many the faults of the federal system, with its relatively powerful states and a less powerful federal government. They are sometimes referred to as Agents of Parliament.
