Magnus populi concursus statim ad eius cadaver. Ecclesie Sancti Mariadoici de Cambron, ad respondendum Benedicto le Bray — his debt of 40s. The bishops were naturally careful to secure that the maintenance of the chapel should be an additional charge on the proprietor who desired it, and that the mother-church should sustain no loss, either in tithes or in such casual offerings as were customary in that age.

Secundo, quod nullus Abbas seu commendatarius possit aut debeat constituere vicarium nisi religiosum e gremio sui monasterii, praesertim in causis concementibus regularem disci- plinam et mores regulares. That some of my parishioners should occasionally speak of it as the cathedral, or the abbey, may be forgiven on the ground of ignorance, or from a desire on their part to magnify its importance ; but that such a learned writer as the author of Scoti-Monasticon should place it in the list of collegiate churches, shows that, after all, ecclesiastical antiquities, even south of the Tweed, are not always perfectly understood.
