The Simple Cobler of Aggawam in America by Nathaniel Ward

It was set upon some of our hearts, That a great thing should be done, not by power or might, but by the Spirit of God. It is said Opinionists are many, and strong, that de sunt Vires, that it is turbata respublica, I am very sorry for it, but more sorry, if despondency of minde shall cause the least tergiversation in Gods Worthies, who have receiv'd such pledges of his presence in their late Counsels, and Conflicts.

That they may likewise have seasonable and honorable maintenance, and that certainly stated: which generally we find and practise here as the best way.

Nathaniel Ward: The Simple Cobbler of Agawam in America

It was published under the pen name of Theodore de la Guard, which is merely a slight disguise of his own name, Theodore being the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew Nathaniel, and de la Guard the French of the English Ward. He that prizes not Old England graces, as much as New-England ordinances, had need go to some other market before he comes hither.
