Stipple, a mode of engraving by dots instead of lines, each dot when magnified showing a group of small ones. Each has different feelings about death, and for each of them the plague is not only a daily reality, an external event which has to be endured, but a philosophical catalyst, forcing them to decide what they think about the world and their place in it. Another name for Oliver was Kinnear.

They meet in the seaside town of Lyme Regis; their affair scandalizes society; she runs away, he pursues her. Like those by Luca della Robbia, they depict a throng of children, in which there is an evident freshness of conception, although they cannot rival the happy proportions and delicate grace of the former.
