Chapter 9. Developing an Organizational Structure for the Initiative

The adoption and implementation of this guidance should be done in collaboration with regulatory agencies and state, local, territorial, and tribal public health departments, and in compliance with state and local policies and practices. They include preservation of the university charter; institutional performance evaluations; fundraising; liaison with external agencies and political bodies; budget approval; oversight of campus policies and investment strategies; and, perhaps most important, hiring and evaluating the ongoing performance of the university president. AAUP Policy Documents and Reports, 8th edition.

School Boards

Whether in the form of categorical aid designed to meet targeted educational needs or in the form of block grants permitting states discretion in the allocation of funds, federal largess has been influential in shaping educational policy and shifting the locus of control over public schools. The term captured the increasingly complex organizational and governance structures required to negotiate its ever-expanding task environment. Financial and media committees are examples of committees formed to help support or facilitate your work.

Guidance for COVID

Nevertheless, existing school board policies, extant procedures, and regularized customs and practices create and then enforce a unifying culture within the school board that is designed to maintain the status quo and has a relatively conservative perspective. Governing Boards A university's governing board, also known as the trustees, regents, or board of visitors, possesses fundamental legal authority over the university.
