The Potential for Native Woodland in Scotland

The situation remained unchanged until a government policy of afforestation, mainly by exotic conifers, after the First World War up to the present day. This further highlights another important area of divergence in terms of the amount of woodland expansion desired.

Scotland's Forestry Strategy 2019

Furthermore, the Community Empowerment Scotland Act 2015 provides a framework for empowering community bodies through the ownership of land and buildings and strengthening their voices in decision making Skerratt et al.

Green Gold to Wild Woodlands; understanding stakeholder visions for woodland expansion in Scotland

The National Forest Land Scheme was another important mechanism for facilitating community ownership or lease and management of land by communities and NGOs and allowed community acquisition of Forestry Estate Scotland land Wong et al. The list of organisations represented is given in Table.

Historic Environment

National estimates were derived by calculating the average woodland density estimate for each species in nine regions of the UK in 2004 including the regions of Northern Scotland and Southern Scotland. Smart , Rachel Oakley , Gareth Browning , Mike J. In any case, all interests are inherently valid and necessary to account for.
