The Kalabsha Temple

While the temple as we see it today was mostly built by the Ptolemies, construction was actually started during the Late Dynastic Period. The Temple of Kalabsha was constructed by the Roman Emperor; Augustus Octavius during the end of the first century BC. Fortunately, many of its monuments were rescued before the floodwaters could get to them.

How to get to Kalabsha: The least visited great temple in Egypt

While you're in the area, stroll along the riverfront. A period of at least four hours is recommended to thoroughly enjoy the temples and structures of the area.
