What Is Identity Politics?

This varied debate has a long half-life see

Fraser 2010; 2013 and contemporary manifestations. Thus those working against racism face a paradox familiar in identity politics: the very identity they aim to transform must be invoked to make their case.

For Gandhi, the social is an essential dimension of self-realisation and developing a moral and spiritual political order of constructive self-other relations. That is why he said that the one seeking truth should be humbler than the dust. Critics charged that the neutral citizen of liberal theory was in fact the bearer of an identity coded white, male, bourgeois, able, and heterosexual Pateman 1988; Young 1990; Di Stefano 1991; Mills 1997; Pateman and Mills 2007.

Thus for example Taiaiake Alfred, in his defense of a return to traditional Indigenous values, argues that: Indigenous governance systems embody distinctive political values, radically different from those of the mainstream. Reading the intellectual history of the politics of recognition through Hegel to Sartre to Fanon to Benhabib, Coulthard argues that this discourse is a reiteration and sometimes a cover-up of the patriarchal, racist, and
