International Conference on Trade and Employment held in Havana, November 17, 1947-March 24, 1948, with discussions resulting in the signing of ITO charter.

Documents of the London Naval Conference, 1930 : consisting of the treaty signed on April 22, the minutes of plenary meetings, memoranda submitted by the United States, French, United Kingdom, Italian and Japanese delegations of their position at the Conference, the report of the First Committee, and the letter addressed by the President of the Conference to the Secretary

We ourselves had made a series of important proposals designed to avert or slacken naval competition in armaments and make more secure the growing strength of the foundations of peace. In 1935, the powers met for a second London Naval Conference to renegotiate the Washington and London treaties before their expiration the following year. Immediately following on the Conference the Italian Government announced their intention of laying down 27 additional vessels—a substantial increase of the building programme already undertaken.

Textual Records: Numbered documents; military governors' decisions; memorandums; and verbatim transcripts of the meetings of deputy military governors and of special experts, 1949. Records of the Committee of Guarantees, 1921-24. I should very much have liked to have interrupted him then and to have asked him to explain that idea more fully, because it may be that he has something in his mind, which a great body of opinion in this country would welcome, if such a thing were possible, as to an agreement, a useful kind of agreement between the English-speaking races.
